SurePeople's Predictive People Analytics Platform Powers Development at Scale

JHHS partnered with SurePeople to harness the power of its cloud-based Predictive People Analytics platform.

SurePeople enabled the Human Resources and Organizational Development teams to integrate and synthesize critical data sets to drive insights. These included SurePeople's proprietary Prism psychometrics (who people are) and 360-degree assessment data (how people behave).

As a result, JHHS has greatly improved its ability to make evidence-based decisions in the following areas:

- Providing high-precision, one-on-one coaching for top leaders;
- Identifying root causes for how leaders behave and the resulting impact on their teams(s) and the broader organization;
- Providing prescriptive solutions for the development of individuals and teams;
- Designing and facilitating customized learning & development experiences for leaders across the organization;
- Ensuring that all leaders have prescriptive digital development plans for their personal and professional development.

SurePeople's platform continues to support JHHS' strategic approach to leadership development by providing the following advantages:

- Comprehensive Prism psychometric and competency data & analytics for cohorts, teams and individual hospitals in the Johns Hopkins Health Network system;
- Prescriptive digital development plans for all leaders;
- Aggregate Prism psychometric data for greater team alignment and optimization;
- Analytics-based cultural portraits of units and teams to align with JHHS's culture and talent agenda;
- A unified technology ecosystem that accommodates large-scale human capital management initiatives in a more cost-effective way and enables greater investment in hands-on coaching and transformational development activities.
